

Abstract

The invention relates to a refractory repair batch material, which includes a refractory, in particular basic resistor component in granule form and a binder system, the binder system containing at least one hard bitumen component in granule form, at least one ignitable metal powder and at least one combustible mineral oil.